MEDIA RELEASE

South West Lovett Bay Residents form a Coastcare group

The Lower Western Shores of Pittwater now has its first Coastcare group. The private properties in South West Lovett Bay sit between Ku Ring Gai Chase National Park and the shores of Pittwater. They also sit within a Pittwater Spotted Gum forest and on the edge of a coastal rainforest, both endangered ecological communities.

The group's objective is to get rid of the bamboo, and other invasive weeds such as cocos palms, asparagus fern and lantana as well as smaller invasive grasses on both public and private land; and to regenerate the bushland.

Resident support for the group is sky high with every property owner in SW Lovett Bay signing up.

Members of the 2 local bushcare groups have also joined so help maintain the work done on public land.

The first event planned by the group is a Weed Identification Workshop to be run by Northern Beaches Council Bushland Supervisor Michael Kneipp this weekend.
